Washington, Feb. 43 .- Army headquarters follows: and the non-partisan officers of the Commissary Department are astonished at two of the findings of the aWr Investigation Commission. These are:

First-That General Miles did not inform the War Department of his discovery as to the embalming of refrigerated beef before was treated with chemicals. The first refrigerated beef which went to General Miles at Porto Rico was taken there on the Manitoba. On reports made to General Miles by his commissary officers, he objected to the landing of this beef and it was condemned. He immediately telegraphed the Secretary of War to send homore refrigerated beef to Porto Rico.

Before the close of August the Manitoba, with its putrid cargo, arrived at New York.

Whole Cargo Condemned. In its arrival a board of survey, of which condemned the whole carge. It was described as the whole was maintained to the York harbor and the official report thereon was immediately forwarded to the Commissary Department and to the Secretary of War General Miles, as an army officer, knew that the result of this inspection would be laid before the Secretary of War.

The Journal published these facts exclusively on December 27.

The Secretary of War immediately of dered a board of inspection on the Manitoba matter, after the Journal's exposure, although he had repeatedly declined General Eagan's request made three mouths previously for such a board.

The board ordered by Secretary Alger is still in session, although its conclusions would have been invaluable to the War Investigating Unmittee.

His business at Tamp was to look for Spnish spies, but he could not help seeing and smelling embalmed beef. He says in his affidavit that he saw bærrels containing a "whiteish fluid" unloaded at Port Tampa by negroes, who removed the portable heads and with splint brooms and dashed this fluid upon piles of slaughtered beef lying on the docks. The quarters of heef were covered with burlaps. He observed that flies at one left the bef, and in steach from it would for the time being ediminished. He also noticed that magnets in and upon the beef would be instantive killed by the application of the chemical faild. today. His business at Tamp was to look

The beef was afterward put into refrigurators on transports and shipped to solders in Cuba and Porto Rico.

Coburn said: "I was ordered to go before he War Investigation Commission and cent to the Lemon building, in Washington, where they were sitting. I saw the extetary, Mr. Weightman, and told him I liftit want to ge before the Commission and tell what I knew, as I was anxious to et work, having just recovered from illess contracted in the servicet and that if I old what I knew I could not get a job, he secretary, after hearing my story, said hat if I wanted to stay in the employment of the service I had better go away and not ell the Commission what I had told him, as it would be to my detriment, and that he employes of the Secret Service had eet very kind to the Commission in that tay."

heen very kind to the Commission in that way.

I was questioned at the Soldier's Home h Washington, D. C., about Nevember 18, 1898, by a man, who I supposed, came from the office of the Secretary of War, to whom I told the story of what I knew about chad beef and other abuses. When he pumped me all he could, he excused himself, and the next day I was ejected by him from the home, being told that I could stay there no longer. The reason i believe this man was a special man for the Secretary of War, is because I personally know all of the Secret Service men about Washington, and this man who pumped me was not one of them.
